Market makes the most of first anniversary

Councillors Anne Chalk, Derek Kenyon, Mike Assenheim, market trader Trevor Day, councillors Graham Longley, Andrew Moring (Deputy Mayor) and Cllr Rick Morgan celebrate Southend High Street Market's first birthday

SOUTHEND High Street Market celebrated its first birthday last Thursday.

The market has been going from strength to strength since it was launched last autumn.

As well as regular stalls selling fruit vegetables, fashion, homeware and gifts there was free entertainment during the day.

One of the founder members of the market, homeware market trader Trevor Day, said: "I enjoy having a stall at Southend High Street Market because there is good footfall, friendly traders and I like being part of a growing market."

Councillor for enterprise, tourism and economic development, Graham Longley, said he was pleased to see how successful the market had become.

Mr Longley said: "It has proved very popular and has attracted a vibrant range of stalls.

"When the council launched this last year, we were acting on a plea from residents who were very keen for an outdoor market in the heart of the town.

"They, along with visitors to Southend, have voted with their feet and flocked in to sample all the delights on offer.

"It is well known that markets encourage even more shoppers to come along to retail areas and visit the established shops, as well as the stalls, so everyone benefits."

A MURDER investigation has been launched after the discovery of the bones of a Southend woman.

The remains of Angela Millington were found washed up on Foulness Island, on Saturday, June 21.

Police do not know how or when the 33-year-old died, or even how long she had been there.

Some bones were discovered by a group of ramblers as they walked on the island.

They called police after they spotted what they thought were human remains in a salt marsh.

Volunteers in campaign to make a difference

PARTY: The launch of the Southend Association of Voluntary Services' Make a Difference Campaign

SOUTHEND Association of Voluntary Services (SAVS) has launched a new campaign called Make a Difference Month.

The launch party took place on Thursday above O'Neill's in Southend.

Emily Middlemast, volunteer centre co-ordinator at SAVS, said the organisation had more than 400 different charities and community groups in the borough.

She said: "Make a Difference Month allows them to showcase their projects, as well as recruit new volunteers to help them continue making a difference."

At the launch event people could listen to music meet artists and pot their own plants.

Emily added: "The volunteer centre is supporting Leonard Cheshire Disability this year at the launch event of their Can Do volunteering project."

"The project places young people with a disability or long-term health condition. They will have a volunteer role for you."

Council to spend £2.6m overhauling street lights

By Paul Giles

southend@yellowad.co.uk

A £2.6MILLION scheme to replace all street lights in Southend will take place later this month.

Street lighting engineers are waiting for their first delivery of 300 new lamps and will start replacing lights along Eastern Avenue with the new units from middle of the month, before moving on to Royal Artillery Way.

The installation follows a trial of several different LED street lighting systems in different neighbourhoods across the borough.

Each of these was assessed for their performance and comments from residents were considered as part of the selection process.

The council intends to replace all 14,000 street lamps over a five-year period.

Councillor for public protection, waste and transport, Terry Martin, said installing the lights would cut the authority's cost of street lighting by 50 per cent over five years.

He said: "This will improve the quality of the lighting and substantially reduce our carbon emissions."

"What's more, the feedback we've received from the residents of the streets where our chosen lamps units were trialled was extremely positive, with residents praising the much cleaner, more targeted light."

"Like other authorities across the country, we're facing some major pressure over reducing our costs.

"That's caused some other councils to decide to turn off street lights during certain periods of the night, raising concerns over public safety."

"We were determined not to go down that route and instead find a solution that serves us well in the long term. We believe that the project will bring substantial savings in energy and maintenance costs for the council."

Equipment for hospital

VITAL medical equipment has been donated to the rehabilitation outpatients department of Southend Hospital.

The new £26,000 ultrasound scanner and a £1,000 water bath was given to the hospital by the Advanced Surgical Equipment Trust (ASET).

It will ensure physiotherapy patients get better treatment and a smoother experience as the department continues its drive to be a one stop clinic.

Billy Fashanu and Dr Huber van Griensven, consultant physiotherapists, said they wanted to improve the patients journey by making it clearer and quicker. They said: "The new ultrasound scanner will enable us to carry out guided injections with greater accuracy."

"Being able to see the needle means we can target affected tissues more effectively."

The replacement water bath, an essential piece of equipment for hand therapy helps mould hand splints for patients after surgery as well as stroke patients and other hand related injuries.

Beverly Loughborough outpatients services manager explained up to 200 splints a month are produced at the hospital. She said: "It was very important that we were able to get a brand new replacement so quickly to ensure our patients weren't affected."

John Gibson MBE, appeals director and chairman of trustees for ASET, said patients previously had to wait up to eight weeks to find out scan results and be referred. Mr Gibson said: "The new ultrasound scanner means they can be assessed and referred in the same day."

"The charity focus has always been to support Southend Hospital in providing new technology and equipment that will improve patient care."

Remains on Foulness

A full search of the island took place and more bones were found.

Remains were found on a part of Foulness Island known as New Burwood Head on the Broomway Path, near the Great Waking Stairs.

Forensic and DNA tests had to be carried out to identify the body as Angela.

Angela lived in the Southend area but did not have a fixed address.

Detectives have been supporting her family and speaking to people who knew her to try and find out how and when she died.

DCI Simon Werrett, of the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate, is leading the investigation.

He said: "I would appeal for anyone who knew Angela to come forward."

"The last definite sighting of her was when she visited a housing officer in Westcliff on November 21, 2013. Money was also drawn out of her bank account on that day. "Her mobile phone has not been used since the end of November and we have not found any of her clothing or belongings."

Police have said Angela was known to associate with street drinkers and local homeless people.

There was a sighting of her by police officers in the Porters Grange area of Southend on Monday, January 6, but there are no definite details of her movements.

DCI Werrett added: "Angela led what I would describe as a 'chaotic lifestyle'."

"The reports indicate she did not die on Foulness but was either taken there or the body was carried in the tide."

"We are keeping all lines of enquiry open. Anyone with any information, no matter how small, could help us."

Anybody with information is asked to contact 01702 470173 during office hours or 101 outside of those times.

Beauty workshops celebrated

SOUTHEND Hospital is celebrating four years of hosting Look Good Feel Better's (LGFB) free skincare and make up workshops that have helped so many women come through their cancer treatment.

LGFB was set up in the UK more than 20 years ago and is supported by over 40 companies and brands within the beauty industry.

Working with trained professionals, who volunteer their time and expertise, the charity helps women and teenagers combat the visible side effects of cancer treatment and in turn boost their confidence and self esteem at a time when keeping positive is crucial.

The two hour workshops are held on a monthly basis at the Macmillan information and Support Centre at the hospital, and are open to women of all ages who have been receiving treatment for any type of cancer.

Sarah Wakeman, regional co-ordinator for LGFB, who is a qualified beauty therapist, said she got involved in the organisation six years ago.

She said: "Coming to terms with cancer can be very daunting and some treatments may result in appearance related side effects that can be very hard to cope with at a time when a positive attitude is very important."

"The 12 step workshops are fun, friendly and totally relaxed."

For more information on LGFB visit www.lgfb.co.uk

Food bank struggles to feed hungry

A CHARITY had to turn away four families in need of emergency food parcels last month because it had run out of supplies.

Castle Point Association of Voluntary Services is appealing for food donations so it will never have to send needy people away empty-handed again. The parcels – available for families with children under five – are distributed through children's centres once CAVS has accepted their plea. Most of its "customers" are families in work but on low wages.

Danielle Phillips, from the association, said: "We have been providing food parcels to local people in need since 2012 and our supplies are running critically low.

"As the cost of living continues to rise, more and more people are having to make dramatic cuts to their standards of living.

"Increasingly, loss of employment, ill health and low income are reasons that families are finding themselves unable to make ends meet.

"We've supplied 27 emergency food parcels this year but have had no choice but to turn four families away this month due to a lack of stock," she added.

She is concerned winter will bring an increase in applications and said donations of any non-perishable food, toiletries or cleaning products would be greatly appreciated.

...meanwhile county councillors tuck into 'unjustified' free meals

AN INVESTIGATION has been launched into councillors receiving free lunches while picking up tens of thousands of pounds in allowances at Essex County Council.

The council's Independent Remuneration Panel will probe free meals offered in a councillors-only canteen at County Hall.

The investigation was ordered after Green Party members James Abbott and Michael Hoy said the free meals were "inappropriate".

The pair tabled a motion at a full council meeting, asking members to accept that free lunches for politicians were not appropriate at a time when services like school transport were being cut.

However, councillors refused to back the motion until the word "inappropriate" had been removed, along with any reference to specific service cuts.

An amended version was then approved by a majority vote.

Figures released under the Freedom of Information Act showed that in 2012/13, councillors ate 3,518 meals in the private canteen, costing taxpayers £42,248.82 – or £11.44 each.

Options in the canteen include roast dinners and curries.

In 2013/14, taxpayers paid £19,491.28 for councillors' lunches.

Figures released last week revealed that seven out of the top 10 claimers in 2013/14 were Conservative cabinet members, claiming free lunches on top of allowances of more than £40,000.

Only four members claimed no hot meals. They were councillors Abbott and Hoy, Tory Ian Grundy and Ukip member Kerry Smith.

Cllr Smith has previously spoken out against the free lunches, saying it was immoral to keep eating them while increasing charges for Meals on Wheels customers.

Last month, councillors increased Meals on Wheels charges for housebound OAPs by £60 per year, claiming an 84p per meal subsidy was too expensive.

Speaking about the new investigation, Cllr Smith said: "Morally, the meals are not justified, but the rules say they are. I think they should be axed.

"There is a canteen at County Hall for all employees of Essex Council to pay for lunch.

"For backbenchers, who only have one or two meetings a month, that's not going to break the bank.

"The cabinet members who are there more often are paid well enough to buy their own lunch. Otherwise, what's wrong with a tray of sandwiches?"

Who claimed the most in 2013/14, and how much taxpayers' money are they already paid?

PIER VISITS UP: Cllr Graham Longley and Lynn Jones, Resort Services Manager, toast a record-breaking year for Southend Pier

Pier attracts record numbers of visitors

VISITOR numbers to Southend Pier have reached their highest levels since it was ravaged by fire in 2005.

By Tuesday, October 21, 294,190 people have visited the pier compared to 283,468 for the whole of 2013, the previous record year since the fire.

The pier's management say the figures are 'extremely encouraging' and the attraction will almost certainly smash the 300,000 visitor mark by the end of the year.

Councillor for enterprise, tourism and economic development, Graham Longley, said the pier was a national treasure and a symbol of immense local pride.

Mr Longley said: "2014 has been another fantastic year for us. "We've had one of the driest summers in recent history and the pier has again drawn the gaze of film and television producers, such as Jamie and Jimmy's Friday Night Feast.

"However, there's still a lot more I want to be done to drive these figures up further, including the possibility of extending pier opening times and increase its income for bring self sufficiency.

"I'd like to explore all our options for how we use the space of the former bowling alley, increase private bookings at the Royal Pavilion and attract further private sector investment.

"It is a world class landmark and we want to ensure it enjoys a long and prosperous role in our town."

RIDERS: Pupils from the Deanes School at VeloPark

Young ride in cycle tracks of Olympians

YOUNGSTERS from a Benfleet school were among more than 700 schoolchildren to enjoy expert coaching at a London 2012 legacy venue.

A party from the Deanes School in Thundersley took part in the first schools festival held at Lee Valley VeloPark with schools from across Essex, Hertfordshire and London.

The four-day event was at the venue in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, Stratford, and gave the students the chance to take part in cycling for free.

Lee Valley VeloPark is the only venue in the world where the public can take part in the four Olympic and Paralympic cycling disciplines in one place; track in the iconic London 2012 velodrome, BMX on the remodelled Olympic track, road cycle on the one-mile road circuit and mountain bike on five miles of mountain bike trails.

Shaun Dawson, Lee Valley Regional park authority chief executive, said: "This is a perfect example of London 2012 delivering on its legacy promise to 'inspire a generation', with hundreds of children coming to enjoy these iconic venues."

"We hope that the young people participating will be inspired to take up some of the sports we have available at these phenomenal centres."

The event was hosted by Lee Valley Regional Park Authority, which owns and runs the venue, and is part of a long-standing programme giving schoolchildren across the capital and further afield opportunities to enjoy sport for free in inspirational surroundings.

Phone scam victim gave £30,000 to bogus police

FRAUDSTERS posing as police officers in Essex and east London have conned a victim out of £30,000.

The latest fraud is largest single theft in a long-running series of telephone scams being carried by organised crime gangs.

The victim, who is in his 60s and from Chigwell, was contacted by a man claiming to be a Metropolitan Police detective.

He was told that criminals had infiltrated his bank account and had deposited £30,000 in counterfeit cash.

The fake officer then asked the man to take out the £30,000 so that it could be forensically examined.

The man was asked to call his bank to check that extra funds were in his account but the original call had been kept open and his "call" was answered by another fraudster who confirmed that money had been deposited.

The bogus officer then called back and asked the man to withdraw £15,000 from two branches of the bank and in £20 and £50 notes as these were the easiest to fake.

He took out the money and was told that a courier would collect it.

But he felt uncomfortable when the courier arrived and sent him away.

The fake detective then telephoned the victim and warned that he would be arrested for impeding a police investigation if he failed to hand over the cash.

WANTED: One of the fraudsters police want to interview

Following the threat he gave the £30,000 to the courier.

The fraud happened on September 30 and despite extensive investigations the trickster and courier have not been identified or caught.

Police have released an efit image of the courier in a major crime appeal.

Detective Chief Inspector Paul Maleary said: "These criminals have become abusive in the past but this is the first time they have forced the victim to comply with their demands by making an arrest threat.

"This is one of the highest amounts taken in Essex and shows just how convincing these thieves can be."

Mr Maleary added: "They are professional criminals and are absolutely ruthless."

"The only answer is to put the phone down and call Essex Police whenever you get any call asking for money to be taken out of your bank account."

He said it is absolutely vital that people are reminded that their bank and police would:

● NEVER ask for bank account details or PIN over the phone.

● NEVER ask you to withdraw money and send it to them.

● NEVER ask you to send them your bank cards or any other personal property

Police said more than 800 similar thefts and attempted thefts have been reported in Essex since the scam first came to light in January 2013, and similar crimes have been reported in the Metropolitan Police area and other counties.

More than 140 people in Essex have been tricked out of money and the total stolen is more than £500,000.

Anyone who can identify the man in the efit should contact the investigating officer PC Danielle Brennan at Loughton on 101.

IT retailer cleans up at industry awards

AN IT retailer has won five prestigious national awards.

The awards are the only ones of their kind to celebrate the work of independent IT resellers and their role in the country's high streets.

Chris and Melanie Loader, owners of Premier Computers, in Southend, were victorious in the ShopTalk National IT Reseller Awards.

The shop, in Earls Hall Parade, Cuckoo Corner, entered seven out of 10 award categories and won five, narrowly missing out on a sixth by just one point.

Chris said rather than sitting back he and his wife were planning on increasing space in the shop and its stock to hopefully be able to win more awards next year.

He said: "We are absolutely delighted to win the awards. What means more to us is that it's come from our peers. To know that they've voted for us is just amazing."

"It's capped off a fantastic day for us, and the trophies will be displayed in our store."

Paul Cabbage, managing director of Target Components, said: "The response to this year's awards has been phenomenal. Thank you to everyone who took part, the standard of entries has been excellent, the level of support has been excellent."

"It's an outstanding performance for Premier Computers, winning five out of the seven categories they entered. The winners have set a benchmark this year. For those who entered but didn't win, it's something to aim for, and in the process of aiming higher you'll improve your business, which is great for everyone."

ShopTalk is the business advice service from distributor Target Components and the awards took place at Target's open day in Leeds.

Opinion and readers' letters

Mansfield should head up inquiry

THIRTY years ago, Tory MP Geoffrey Dickens passed a dossier of alleged child abusers to the then Home Secretary, Leon Brittan.

The dossier was subsequently destroyed, which led to the independent inquiry into the way public bodies handled child sex abuse claims.

The government's management of this inquiry has been a shambles and they must get an urgent grip of the situation.

First, the government appointed Baroness Elizabeth Butler-Sloss to head the inquiry, but overlooked that Margaret Thatcher's attorney general Michael Havers was her brother. Havers had reportedly tried to prevent Dickens from naming a paedophile in Parliament.

Butler-Sloss investigating her late brother was a huge conflict of interest, and she resigned in the summer.

The government then appointed Fiona Woolf, lawyer and Lord Mayor of London, without vetting her and discovering that she and Brittan are neighbours and have regularly had dinner together.

Another huge conflict of interest is to investigate the department run by someone you see socially. Hence, Woolf's resignation on Friday.

For the sake of the children abused by establishment figures, some in positions of power, the government has to appoint someone who is beyond reproach. Even the perception of a conflict of interest is unacceptable. There must be someone in Britain who is not related to a member of the Thatcher cabinet and has not had dinner with Brittan? That gives us a few million to choose from, but does narrow down the options when that person has to run this very important inquiry.

The government must consider Michael Mansfield QC, champion of the underdog, and former lawyer for the families of Stephen Lawrence (murdered) and Jean Charles de Menezes (killed by the state), and also the Guildford Four, the Birmingham Six and James Hanratty.

Mansfield is reported to be a republican, a vegetarian and a socialist, so would probably be disqualified on all three counts. But who better to get at the truth?

I would hope that the National Association for People Abused in Childhood (NAPAC) would have more confidence in Mansfield than they did in Baroness Butler-Sloss and Lord Mayor Woolf.

This inquiry must lose no more time and get to the bottom of this cover-up, regardless of how unpleasant that is for the establishment.

Need for affordable housing

IT should be crystal clear to every politico in the urban paradise that occasionally is Southend-on-Sea, that this town is in desperate need of affordable housing.

This manifests itself in a number of ways – youngsters still at home, families overcrowded, aspirant home-owners trapped in expensive rental agreements.

Home-building would also be a driver for employment for local builders and craftsmen who assemble and furnish these new homes.

Recent announcements by Ed Miliband are welcome news; to remind readers, these have included giving communities power to build where people want to live, enabling councils to plan properly for home-building, and giving access rights to first-time buyers.

This Government has a frankly terrible record on home ownership and house-building, including the lowest levels of house-ownership in 90 years and home ownership levels at their lowest in 30 years.

Those houses available are too expensive for young families, pushing back the age at which people can own their first property.

Our children face a grim future unless the housing market is made to work for them.

I applaud the Labour commitment to build 200,000 homes a year by 2020.

I also applaud the aspiration to see the number of first-time buyers doubled by 2025.

I was in my twenties when I first owned my home – and I wish this for all in their twenties, in Southend and in the rest of the country.

Julian Ware-Lane
Leigh-on-Sea

Where next for our brave soldiers?

LISTENING to or reading grand speeches – mostly by media hacks – about the heroic, successful, timely, return of the British soldiers from Afghanistan, one might get the feelings of nausea associated with time travel.

Well, time travel it isn't and we are not witnessing any scenes from the heyday of the British Empire – though, the nausea persists. And those other adjectives aren't true either.

One of the soldiers tiredly remarked that, "We are finally going home!"

Poor sod – he doesn't know yet, that they'll all be in Syria next week.

Fred Nicholson
Westcliff

Thanks for response on education

MAY I say a big thank you to all the Southend folk – more than 100 of them – who have helped by sending me their views on primary education in the borough.

I am still working with officers on the council's support for its schools and welcome opinions or concerns from parents, teachers and anyone else involved.

As always, these will be treated in the strictest confidence.

Cllr Ric Morgan
Westcliff

Agreed on smokescreen anger at EU

DAVID Bodimeade is totally correct when he says that David Cameron's anger at the £1.7billion bill from the EU (YA letters, last week) is for show only.

This bill was known about for several days before it hit the headlines (strangely just before Mr Cameron jetted off for a meeting of EU leaders so he could look angry on the television), which does raise the question of how much the Treasury and Number 10 communicate.

In reality, this is about Ukip, and the pressure they are putting on the Conservative Party as it haemorrhages members and supporters, and Mr Cameron's renegotiations in the lead-up to a possible in/out referendum in 2017.

Although, considering Mr Cameron's "cast iron" guarantee of one on Lisbon, it is understandable that anti-EU Tories are less than convinced that he means it.

There may well be an adjustment in due course as EU corporate fines are taken into account, which will probably lead to a refund in the near future, but Mr Cameron's faux anger just makes him look like a man desperately floundering around for an issue to appease his backbenchers to look strong on Europe.

● SOUTHEND Council is set to save millions of pounds by moving out of the leased Southchurch Centre, in Southchurch Road, and moving into Margaret Thatcher House.

A one off sum of £460,000 will be invested to modernise the building to make it suitable for office use for the next decade.

The council claim it will create an annual saving of £150,000 a year and see the Integrated Youth Support Services team move in on April 2015.

It will also see more services centralised in Victoria Avenue near the Civic Offices.

It could also enable a small Essex Police team to co-locate within the building and create additional space that could be leased to outside partners to generate cash.

Leader of the council, Ron Woodley said it was an exciting opportunity to centralise services in Victoria Avenue.

● A SHOWER caught alight in a property in South Avenue which needed two crews to put it out.

The fire happened in a first floor bathroom in Southend at 2.34am, on Sunday, November 2.

Crews used breathing apparatus and one hose reel to put the fire out by 3.08am.

A fire investigation will be carried out to find the cause of the blaze.

● A MAN was trapped in his car for half an hour as fire crews tried to free him.

The crews were called to Frobisher Way, in Shoeburyness, at 3.55pm, on Saturday, November 1.

Two cars had collided and firefighters used cutting equipment to release the man by 4.28pm.

The man was left in the car of the Ambulance Service.

CLIFFORD'S BARBER SHOP

A WONDERFUL new barbers has recently opened in Southchurch Road, Southend, styled on the traditional barber shops of yester year.

This quaint new shop called Clifford's, which is decorated with interesting items of memorabilia around it walls, is a great new addition to Southchurch Road and men's hairdressing in Southend.

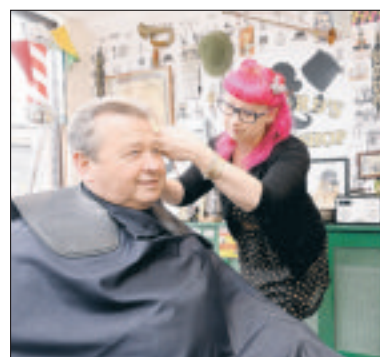

Offering the traditional barber shop style of days gone by Clifford's are able to cater for everyone thanks to its real family barber shop feeling, where every gent and youngster can feel comfortable and relaxed whilst they receive a top notch haircut at very competitive prices.

With booster cushions and a fantastic retro motorbike child's seat even smaller children and tiny tots can have a tidy up too, and there's a Nintendo 64 with Super Mario to keep children occupied whilst dad gets his hair done.

With memorabilia filled walls and other interesting items scattered around the shop you also won't mind waiting a while, as there are plenty of things to gaze at.

Commenting on her new barbers, owner Nicola Waller (pictured), who is well known in Southend hairdressing circles, says she set out to help make going for a haircut more fun and hopes her shop will be the first of many.

Zombie walk and horror screening at shopping centre

PEOPLE dressed up as zombies to celebrate Halloween at the Royals Shopping Centre last Friday.

Visitors to the shopping centre were all treated to a viewing of 'Dawn of the Dead'.

Manager of The Royals, Dawn Jeakings said the centre was a perfect location to show the film.

She said: "It was the first time we've done this and it was really exciting."

The event was in collaboration with The White Bus, organisers of Southend's annual Horror-on-Sea festival.

Owner Paul Cotgrove said the event reflected the growing trend of showing great movies in new surroundings.

He said: "Screening Dawn of the Dead in a shopping mall worked really well because of the Royals at night created an amazing atmosphere."

REVIEW: Cllr Martin Terry and Kara Phillips, civil enforcement supervisor for APCOA, with a council camera car outside St Mary's Primary School

Council pledges fair CCTV parking patrols

SOUTHEND Council has reviewed the role CCTV plays in tackling on-street parking.

Parking enforcement is being focused solely on vehicles that cause a risk to public safety, such as in and around bus lanes, bus stops, pedestrian crossings and outside schools.

Other violations, such as parking on double yellow lines will be dealt with by civil enforcement officers.

The changes have come at a time when the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, Eric Pickles, is proposing a shake-up of how local authorities use CCTV cameras.

The national review is going through the parliamentary stages and it is expected that the government will publish its change in approach as part of its Deregulation Bill, which is expected to receive Royal assent later this year.

Councillor for public protection, waste and transport, Martin Terry, said the authority needed to keep the public safe and have CCTV as an effective tool.

Mr Terry said: "We need to make sure that CCTV enforcement of parking is fair and proportionate."

"Southend will be a parking-friendly borough and rest assured, we will not shy away from penalising those who flout our fair and transparent rules."

"We'll continue to monitor the national review and ensure that the resulting regulatory changes and new guidelines are implemented smoothly and communicated to the local community and road users."

Ice skating's dynamic duo tell their story

By LIZ WADE

SKATING legends Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean will be talking about their career and lives during a number of special appearances at theatres across the UK.

Our Life On Ice: In Conversation With Torvill and Dean, gives fans the chance to hear them talk about their career and lives in intimate settings, including The Palace Theatre, Southend, next month.

The tour, their first at theatres, follows the publication of their autobiography – Torvill and Dean: Our Life On Ice – which was released on October 9 and sees the Olympic champions finally open up about the challenges they have faced and the pressures of life in the public eye.

When Torvill and Dean threw themselves to the ice for the climax of their routine for Ravel's Boléro at the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, the judges could find no faults and awarded them the 12 maximum scores of 6.0, while 24million British TV viewers watched at home in amazement.

Following that triumphant win, the world became fascinated by ice skating and everyone wanted to know more about the young couple at the heart of it all.

Despite intense interest in them both from the media and public, Torvill and Dean kept their lives private, with many still wondering if the pair were really a couple both on and off the ice.

They turned professional and would eventually spend 10 glorious years working on ITV's Dancing on Ice, yet with still much of their story remaining untold.

In their autobiography, published by Simon & Schuster, Torvill speaks candidly about her struggles to start a family, while Dean reveals the heartache within his own family story.

Of course, there is the skating, and the stories about what inspired their famous routines, and what the pair hope to achieve in the future as they approach their 40th Anniversary of working together.

Audiences taking a seat at The Palace Theatre in December will hear more about these stories and many others from them both in person.

Commenting about the tour, Torvill and Dean said: "We are both very much looking forward to the UK tour that will combine our love of being on stage in front of our fans with the publication of our autobiography.

"The fact that we won't be on the ice might seem strange at first, but it will give us the chance to meet the people who have supported us over the past 30 years in an intimate setting where we can share our stories live in front of the theatre audiences."

● For further information and tickets for Our Life On Ice: In Conversation With Torvill and Dean, which will be at The Palace Theatre, Southend, at 8pm on Monday, December 8, call the box office on 01702 351135 or visit <https://southendtheatres.org.uk>.

Anne Hathaway as Amelia

INTERSTELLAR (12A, 150 mins)

WRITER-director Christopher Nolan shoots for the stars with a futuristic thriller, co-written with his brother Jonathan, about mankind's search beyond this galaxy for a new home to replace a dying planet earth.

Epic in scope and wildly ambitious, Interstellar does not quite achieve its bold vision of a love story between a father and daughter set against the vast backdrop of mankind's final roll of the dice to avoid extinction.

However, even when this grand futuristic adventure malfunctions, it is a deeply engrossing meditation on the ties that bind and the endurance of those emotional bonds across space and time.

Nolan and cinematographer Hoyte van Hoytema have captured some of the most breathtaking vistas including our first glimpses of a black hole or wormhole on large-format IMAX film.

These sequences pack a mighty visual punch and powerfully convey how tiny and seemingly insignificant we are on our third rock from the sun.

Composer Hans Zimmer, who collaborated with the London-born director on The Dark Knight trilogy, provides another bombastic orchestral score to complement the majestic imagery.

Planet earth is dying: great dust clouds sweep across agricultural plains, ruining crops and making it impossible to breathe comfortably without face masks.

"We used to look up and wonder about our place in the stars. Now we just look down and worry about our place in the dirt," laments Cooper (Matthew McConaughey), a former test pilot, who toils the parched soil with his 15-year-old son Tom (Timothée Chalamet) and 10-year-old daughter Murph (Mackenzie Foy).

Cooper answers a call from Professor Brand (Michael Caine) to lead a mission to locate a new planet capable of sustaining human life.

"We're not meant to save the world. We're meant to leave it," explains Brand, whose scientist daughter Amelia (Anne Hathaway) will be part of the four-strong crew along with astrophysicist Romilly (David Gyasi) and pilot Doyle (Wes Bentley).

Leaving his brood in the care of his father-in-law

(John Lithgow), Cooper undertakes the most important mission in human history, knowing that failure would mean certain death for the people he loves.

Interstellar retains a tight focus on the characters without sacrificing the adrenaline-pumping thrills that fans expect from director Nolan.

Two talking military machines called TARS (voiced by Bill Irwin) and CASE are a marvel of mechanical puppeteering and inject much needed humour.

"I have a discretion setting," deadpans TARS in response to a request from Cooper to disclose sensitive information.

Oscar-winners McConaughey and Hathaway add emotional heft to their embattled astronauts, wringing out tears after Amelia sternly warns Cooper: "You might have to choose between seeing your children again and saving the human race."

A couple of dense, wordy philosophical discussions about gravity and love orbit the moon of unintentional hilarity but thankfully, Nolan avoids the crash and burn in the nick of time.

Queen Elizabeth's hunting lodge

ARARE survival of a timber-framed hut, standing alongside a modern visitor centre, offer the perfect starting point to explore historic Epping Forest.

Queen Elizabeth's Hunting Lodge, which was built for Henry VIII in 1543, is an amazing piece of local heritage to explore and cherish.

It was originally built as a grandstand for the King's guests where they could view the Royal hunt and also shoot deer with crossbows from the upper floors.

The building, known as Great Standing, was renovated in 1589 for Queen Elizabeth I, and it is believed that both she and Henry VIII hunted in the forest during Tudor times, although no documentary evidence has survived to prove it.

During this time, it would have functioned as a venue for royal 'corporate hospitality' as a means for the king to display his wealth and power.

Alongside Henry VIII and Elizabeth I, James I also used the hunting lodge, which was originally constructed with an open-sided viewing platform.

Gradually it stopped being used for its original purpose and in the 18th century, after the reign of Charles I, the upper viewing spaces were filled in and windows were installed.

In later years it was used as a keepers or bailiffs lodge, as well as a forest retreat for serving teas during Victorian times.

It was eventually acquired by the Corporation of London, with the co-operation of the Essex Field Club, and following an extensive restoration it was converted into a museum in 1895.

Since then it has housed collections of local natural history and artefacts for people to enjoy and today visitors will find a Tudor kitchen on the ground floor, complete with a brick fireplace dating back to 1590. Here there are two tables of replica Tudor food, including meat and fish, and other offerings fit for a banquet, as well as examples of what the king's servants would have eaten.

On the first floor there's a Tudor dressing up box and displays of Henry VIII or Queen Elizabeth, while on the top floor you will find stunning views across the Chingford Plain and Epping Forest

LODGE: Originally built as a grandstand for the King's guests

— a view not too different from what the Tudor courtiers would have enjoyed centuries ago— as well as a display on how the hunting lodge was constructed, including a range of replica joints.

Right next door to the lodge is The View visitor centre which is home to regularly changing art and history exhibitions as well as interactive displays tellings the story of Epping Forest, from who used to live there to how it became a public space.

A visit to Queen Elizabeth Hunting Lodge and The View is also a great place to start exploring the forest as there are two waymarked trails start from the back door of the visitor centre.

*For further information about both Queen Elizabeth Hunting Lodge and The View visit www.cityoflondon.gov.uk

A menu to get you hooked

FRESHLY caught fish, fine wine and fantastic estuary views are all on offer at Simply Seafood in Leigh-on-Sea.

The establishment, at 1 The Cockle Sheds, High Street, reopened its doors during the summer, much to the delight of locals and passers-by, after being closed for more than a year.

Experienced fryer, front-of-house representative and restaurant owner, Mario, who has been a resident for 20 years, jumped at the opportunity to give the restaurant a new lease of life and a complete refurbishment when its former owner retired.

Having owned and run restaurants in a variety of places for the past 44 years, including St Albans, Twickenham, Surrey, and north and east London, Mario has poured his wealth of experience into the business and created a wonderful, fresh and inviting environment for up to 30 diners in the restaurant.

He has also made the most of the views of one of the estuary's most charming settings, by created a large decking area with seating for up to 40 people to enjoy, and transformed the restaurant's former deli counter into a takeaway area for passers-by, offering even more for those looking for a fresh bite to eat.

Mario said: "I love fish and love what we have done. You can sit on the decking area and enjoy the views and see fishermen getting their boats ready for the cockle season.

"Fish comes in daily including line-caught sea bass, local oysters, lobsters and fresh fish from the market.

"The menu reflects what is fresh that day and as we never use frozen fish – when it runs out it runs out. We are also running a specials' board and have added meat dishes for non-fish lovers such as T-bone steak, sirloin steak and rack of lamb."

Current offers at the restaurant include a two-course set menu for £14.95 per person, either two fish or two meat dishes, from a choice of four starters, four mains and four desserts; six oysters with a glass of Oyster Bay Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc for only £9.95; and a free bottle of house wine for bookings of four enjoying the a la carte menu from 5pm to 7.30pm. You can also enjoy cod and chips from the takeaway for just £5.95 up until the end of November.

From Tuesday, December 2, Simply Seafood will be serving a special Christmas Menu, for £20.95 for two-courses or £24.95 for three-courses, with a choice of starters including soup of the day, chicken liver parfait with red onion chutney and toasted brioche, prawn and crayfish cocktail, calamari with a dressed salad and homemade tartare sauce, oak-smoked haddock or Scottish oak-smoked salmon. This is followed by roast turkey, pan-fried Scottish salmon, roast sirloin of beef, mushroom Wellington or grilled lemon sole for your main course, and either Christmas pudding with brandy sauce or mulled winter berry crumble with homemade custard for dessert.

Anyone interested in making a Christmas booking is urged to call for further information and book early to avoid disappointment.

Simply Seafood's restaurant is open from noon to 3.30pm and from 5-9.30pm, from Monday to Saturday, and from noon to 4pm on Sunday, while its takeaway is open from noon to 3pm and 5-9pm from Tuesday to Saturday, and from noon to 4pm on Sunday.

A taste of real Americana

Authentic American BBQ Ribs, pulled pork, flame-grilled steaks and fantastic burgers

GALLACHER'S opened in Leigh 10 weeks ago and is receiving five-star reviews from very happy diners.

Many are saying that this smokehouse is comparable and even better than some of the established barbecue smokehouses in London. There certainly is not another authentic American smokehouse within at least a 20-mile radius.

The pulled pork, baby back and spare ribs are cooked to tender perfection on the premises in smokers imported from Oklahoma by the Gallacher's team. All the barbecue rubs and sauces are made from scratch every day in-house and they are the result of years of research by the owners.

The chefs craft homemade burgers from a mix of chuck, sirloin steak and brisket that is all minced and mixed in house. Generous six-ounce all beef patties served in artisan brioche buns with an exciting and sometimes "off the wall" range of toppings. The fries are hand-cut, triple-fried and served seasoned with Gallacher's own special mix of spice and herbs.

Beef ribs, also known as Jacob's Ladder, are one of the most popular menu items. Braised for at least five hours and then transferred to the smoker for another five hours. The meat is tender, succulent and falls off the bone. Guests now reserve portions of these mighty meaty ribs when they phone for reservations.

A great smokehouse would not be complete without fabulous steaks too. Mouthwatering, tender, juicy sirloin and rib-eye steaks are flame-grilled and are available from 10 ounce to 15 ounce portion sizes.

All the meat used at Gallacher's is British, as its ethos is that British farmers are the best in the world, and sourced as locally as possible.

All side dishes are freshly made every day in house and the coleslaw, cowboy beans and cornbread muffins are proving to be favourites with guests, many of whom have returned several times in the 10 weeks that the restaurant has been open. The onion rings and chilli cheese fries compliment the huge burgers perfectly and create that Man Versus Food experience for those with an appetite for quality as well as quantity.

Craft beers from as far a field as New Zealand and North America and an international wine list that many "fine dining" restaurants would envy are on offer and the lists are increasing and changing to ensure that there is always something new on offer. The food menu is also changing and being fine-tuned regularly and the specials' board showcases new dishes that are being developed and created by the Gallacher's food team constantly.

Midweek specials available Tuesday to Thursday include barbecue tasting platters, guest burgers, steak dinners with free wine or craft beer and the new Mid Week Two Courses Deal.

Guests can choose from four starters, eight mains, and four desserts and enjoy two courses for only £14.95!

Christmas bookings are now being taken and for parties of eight or more there is a special Celebration BBQ Feast available – a selection of starters, smoked and barbecue meats, spicy Texas chilli, side dishes, dessert and coffee for just £29.95 per person, all served family style as they do in the USA, so you and your party can just sit back, relax, enjoy and chill out.

For more information and to make a reservation call 01702 474611. You can find Gallacher's on Facebook and read the fantastic reviews and find out more about the food and fun on offer.

Gallacher's is open Tuesday to Friday from 5pm until late, Saturday from noon until late and Sunday from noon to 5pm.

If you are looking for great food, great drinks and great times, this is the place to go.

To sell at Auction or via an Estate Agent?

Award-winning property auctioneer Auction House has sold more than 2,000 lots this year – a full four weeks earlier than in 2013 – becoming the first auctioneer to reach that milestone figure in the UK.

Why auction and in particular why Auction House? Let's look at the 2 ways to achieve a sale in a normal property market.

- 1) Auction - Price low and use competitive bidding to drive up the price to the maximum someone will pay
- 2) Private Treaty - set an inflated asking price and discount down until you eventually hook a buyer.

It's no surprise then that the quick, easy, more certain way is the one offered by Auctions. Most sellers are persuaded down the slower process route - which all too often fails to deliver a timely result or the best price.

So which way is better way for you to sell? That decision is determined by the property and your circumstances. Certain types of property sell for more money via auction and some vendors need to sell quickly.

The question you should be asking yourself is "Would you rather have a room full of buyers bidding against each other to buy your property or wait for someone to walk past your estate agents office and see it in the window?"

For more information or to find out if your property is suitable to sell at auction call now on 01702 33 33 99

ASK THE AGENT ALAN KIRKMAN

Alan Kirkman is a Director of both Tudor Estates in Southend and Essex TEAM part of a network of independently owned estate agents who share their instructions for the benefit of giving their client properties maximum market exposure. Alan has been an estate agent for over 32 years.

Q. If I switch agents, can the first one still claim a fee if my home is successfully sold by the new agent to a buyer he originally introduced?

A. A very interesting question indeed! In fact, this whole issue of liability to pay more than one agency fee is frankly, a real grey area.

Until a few years ago, most agents included a "ready, willing and able" clause in their contracts. This basically meant that as long as they were responsible for originally introducing the person who wanted to buy your home, then they were entitled to their fee – even if the actual sale was subsequently handled by another agent (who naturally would also expect a fee).

Then, in 2008 in a landmark case, the Appeal Court found against well-known London agents who had tried to sue a seller for their commission, on the grounds that they had originally introduced the buyer. The judgement said that it was no longer enough to introduce a buyer to a property. The buyer had to be "introduced to the sale." So, for example, if an agent were to do everything possible to progress the sale – arrange viewings, for example, make regular follow-up calls, or perhaps even successfully negotiate an acceptable offer, only to lose the instruction at the last gasp when his contract lapsed – then he would have a clear cut case for charging a fee.

Nevertheless, the reality is that many agents still claim the right to go after their fee, purely on the strength of having originally introduced the buyer. And in certain circumstances, you can understand why. For instance, I'm sure you will be shocked to learn that some buyers and sellers, once introduced to each other, are not above trying to do private deals behind the agent's back!

Normally, of course, an agent's approach to this whole issue should be clearly set out in the terms of the sales agreement vendors are required to sign. Some, for example, will state that a fee will be payable if a property is sold to a buyer they originally introduced, within a given time of that contract expiring.

Ultimately, therefore, the most important things for vendors is to ensure that they choose an agent they can trust to look after their interests properly - and make sure they read any contract carefully before signing!

A NICE SURPRISE FROM TOOMEY VAUXHALL

A forgotten ten-pound note in your pocket or a letter from the taxman saying he owes you money? We all like nice surprises, which is why local Vauxhall retailer, Toomey, is giving motorists a pleasant surprise this November.

On top of its other great offers, the retailer with sites in Southend and Basildon, is giving away £500 of free fuel with new Vauxhall cars and vans purchased during the Vauxhall Weekend of Giving, which takes place from Friday 7th to Monday 10th November 2014.

During the weekend, customers can also get 20% off all Genuine and Approved Vauxhall Accessories, such as sat navs, iPhone/iPad cradles and cargo liners, when they purchase a new car. These 'nice little surprises' are on top of Vauxhall's existing range of available offers.

Kristian Hills, Operations Director at the retailer, comments: "The Vauxhall Weekend of Giving will come as a welcome unexpected treat to motorists looking for a new vehicle this November. It gives drivers the opportunity to take advantage of a range of fantastic incentives, from helping to cut costs at the fuel pumps to discounts on accessories, so they can take to the road in a brand new Vauxhall for less.

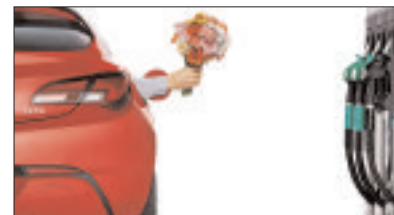

"We'd like to invite all those interested in a new vehicle to stop by at one of our dealerships during the event period to take advantage of the offers available and discover the Vauxhall that best suits their needs."

The £500 free fuel offer is available on a wide range of models, including the urban-chic ADAM city car, fun-loving Corsa and adventure-seeking Mokka SUV.

As well as passenger cars, the offer is applicable to Vauxhall's multi-award-winning van range, including the Corsavan, Combo, Vivaro and Movano, so commercial vehicle customers can benefit too.

Scrap Cars

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

HAMMERS TURN ON STYLE WITH LATE RECOVERY

West Ham United

Barclays Premier League
Stoke City 2-2 West Ham United Brian Jeeves reporting from the Britannia Stadium

SPIRITED West Ham recovered from two goals down to gain what had earlier seemed an unlikely point at Stoke City.

The Britannia Stadium is widely recognised as a difficult place to plunder Premier League points.

Nevertheless, West Ham arrived in the Potteries in good shape after beating champions Manchester City at Upton Park seven days before.

But the Potters were mindful that a victory could catapult them into the top half of the table, within two points of the high-flying east Londoners.

Indeed it was lively Stoke who were first to threaten. Hammers defender Winston Reid had to be alert after Jonathan Walters surged down the right and centred.

Soon after Reid had to be on his toes again, this time thwarting Steven Nzonzi's low drive.

Stoke were looking the more likely to break the deadlock. Former Barcelona man Bojan's effort was snubbed out by some brave defending from James Collins after another lightning raid down the right.

And Stoke should have grabbed the lead when Mame Diouf was only inches away from converting Bojan's cross.

Stewart Downing should have done better, sending his effort high and wide after a neat interchange with Alex Song during a rare foray forward from the visitors in the first period.

Just after the half-hour mark a goal duly arrived, and it was no surprise that the home side provided it.

Victor Moses was quickest to react following a melee in the Hammers box and scrambled the ball over the line.

And as the half drew to a close it was the home side who continued to look the brighter. Moses's surging run was brought to a conclusion by some desperate last-ditch defending from Collins, while Bojan was only inches away with Hammers Spanish 'keeper Adrian fully extended.

West Ham were on the ropes and once again had Adrian to thank as he made a brilliant point blank stop as Moses looked set to double the Potters advantage.

The Hammers boss Sam Allardyce brought Carlton Cole into the fray for the second period in an attempt to bolster the visitors' attack, but it was Stoke who were first to show. The electrifying Bojan, again a thorn in West Ham's side, found Adrian's midriff with a free-kick from distance.

And before the east Londoners could make any real headway their problems doubled. Jonathan Walters showed Aaron Cresswell a clean pair of heels before delivering for Diouf to head beyond Adrian.

But West Ham were not going down without a fight, and clawed their way back into the match, albeit in controversial circumstances.

Song was high and late on Diouf but referee Chris Foy allowed play to continue, much to the anguish of all connected with Stoke.

Downing raced away down the right, crossing for the headlong Valencia who beat Begovic and halved the home side's advantage.

The game continued to ebb and flow. Nzonzi had Adrian at full stretch and Diouf headed just over as Stoke went in search of a decisive goal.

But the tide had started to turn, West Ham started to attack with greater intent, and with 20 minutes remaining, Downing crisply met a pinpoint ball from Valencia to restore parity.

Man of the match Bojan tried to lift Stoke's spirits with a shot that warmed Adrian's fingers, then the Hammers' keeper made an even better save low to his right to keep out Geoff Cameron.

In the burning embers the Potters pressed hard to claim maximum points, but West Ham showed the kind of resolve that had earlier been missing to claim a share of the spoils and extend their unbeaten run to four games.

After the dust had settled, Allardyce said: "I have to give Stoke credit for the way that they played."

"For me, at 2-0 it was about changing the shape of the team, getting the substitutes on that were going to give us an opportunity to get back in the game."

Allardyce continued: "The two goals we scored were fantastic goals, I don't think there's any doubt about that. The extra quality we've got this year has paid dividends. It looked like we were getting nothing out of this game but we've got a precious point".

Stoke boss Mark Hughes said: "I thought we were excellent from start to finish. That was one of our most dynamic and creative performances this season."

West Ham are next in Barclays Premier League action on Saturday when Aston Villa visit Upton Park.

Non-league round-up

Rovers have six appeal

by Brian Jeeves

RYMAN League One North outfit Great Wakering Rovers were in great goalscoring form at the weekend, thrashing Redbridge 6-2 at Burroughs Park.

Nick Skelton (2), Tom Ranger (2), Billy Johnson and Billy Radley were on target for the villagers with Bostry Bansende and Patrick Damali replying for sorry Redbridge. This victory eased relegation worries for Dan men by lifting them into 16th place in the table.

But it wasn't such good news for Tilbury. Ryan Flack grabbed a late goal for the Dockers at Cheshunt, but it served only as a consolation as the home side ran out 2-1 winners. And it was even worst for rock bottom Burnham Ramblers who crashed 5-0 at Needham Market.

In the Vanarama Conference Premier Division, Braintree Town earned a point from a goalless draw with high-flying Woking at Cressing Road, while in the South Division, goals from Stephen Cawley and Sam Collins gave Concord Rangers the points against Weston-super-Mare.

Elsewhere, Chelmsford City won by the odd goal in three at Basingstoke Town. A goal in each half from Southend United loanee Jason Williams and former Shrimper Lee Sawyer clinching the points for the Claretts.

Many of the region's teams were on FA Trophy First Qualifying Round duty. Michael Malcolm and Billy Coyne found the net as AFC Hornchurch saw off Harrow Borough 2-0 at Bridge Avenue, while a brace from Calvin Poku and a Dion Polius strike helped Barkingside to a 3-1 win over Kingstonian.

Grays Athletic impressively overcame Hampton & Richmond Borough by three goals to nil, while several of our teams will try again after their ties ended all square.

Stanley Sherwin was Brentwood Town's goal man in a 1-1 draw with Biggleswade Town, and it was the same outcome at the Prospects Stadium where Joseph Carter was Canvey Island's marksman against Leatherhead. Hungerford Town and East Thurrock United was also 1-1, but it was the end of the Wembley trail for Thurrock, who lost 3-2 at Folkestone Invicta and Billericay Town who went down to Ryan Jones only goal at Metropolitan Police.

The pick of the action from the Essex Senior League saw FC Romania win 5-0 at the Old Spotted Dog against Clapton, while there were derby wins for Basildon United, 2-0 against Hullbridge Sports, and Ilford, 2-1 at Barking.

Help for heroes

GREAT Wakering Rovers are urging fans to turn out in force for a special game in aid of the nation's injured servicemen and women. To back forces charity Help for Heroes, Rovers have announced that all fans will be admitted free to their Ryman North clash against Needham Market on Saturday, November 22, kick-off 3pm.

Supporters will be asked to make a donation at the turnstiles or during the game with volunteers organising a bucket collection around the ground.

Rovers chairman Tony Butcher said: "To help our injured servicemen and women we will be hosting an afternoon of entertainment and fundraising for Help for Heroes and we are asking fans to show their support by turning out in force."

Leopards prepare for league after trophy loss

Basketball

THE top two teams in last season's Division One table meet at the Brentwood Centre on Friday (8pm) as Leopards host Reading Rockets.

The Rockets are the Big Cats' oldest rivals, and piped them to the league title last season on their way to a treble.

Leopards won the 2012 league title on Rockets' home court and also went on to complete a treble that season, and the rivalry goes back as far as the 2005/6 season when the Big Cats won the National Cup in front of 6,000 people at the NIA with a 75-71 victory against the Berkshire team.

Although it will be Leopards' first league game of the campaign, the sides have already met in the National Trophy, and a long jump shot from Brentwood boy Will Ashby sealed a thrilling 73-72 victory for the Big Cats at Rivermead.

The Rockets struggled in the Trophy, winning only two of their six games to go out of the competition, but they opened their defence of the Division One crown with a 72-58 win at Bradford Dragons on Saturday and also progressed to the quarter-final of the National Cup with an overtime win in Kent.

Tickets for the game are available on the door or through www.leopardsbasketball.co.uk.

It was a case of deja vu for Leopards on Saturday as they went down 84-70 at Kent Crusaders for their first loss in the group stage of the National Trophy.

Robert Youngblood's team had lost 78-65 when the sides met three weeks before, but the game was ordered to be replayed due to a sub-standard court.

But the Big Cats were again out-worked by a young Crusaders' team on a court that was almost identical to one ruled illegal by Basketball England.

Ashby opened the scoring with a trey and then hit a long jumper to put Leopards 5-4 ahead. But that was as good as it got for the visitors, and although Dave Ajumobi also scored from beyond the arc, the home side took a 20-13 lead into the first break.

Swedish centre Lukas Winegarner opened the second period scoring with a trademark tip-in and hit a three midway through the period, but the hosts soon pulled away and it took a trey from Jordan Williams to cut the deficit to 37-27 at half-time.

An Ashby drive to the basket made it a seven-point game with three second-half minutes gone, but despite veteran Ronnie Baker taking control late in the third period and Ajumobi draining a three, a 12-0 run from the home side saw them go into the final break with a commanding 63-44 lead.

Albert opened the fourth period scoring, but Leopards never looked capable of getting the margin into single figures as the home side closed out the win.

Ashby led the way for the Big Cats with five three pointers in his 19 points, with Ajumobi adding 11 and Baker 10.

Leopards are now second in the group with a 3-1 record.
